Xu Li

She was born in 1980. She received her B.E. degree in computer science and technology from University of science and technology Anshan in 2003, and her M.E. and Ph.D. degrees in computer application technology from Yanshan University in 2006 and 2010, respectively. She is currently an associate professor and supervisor of postgraduate students in control science and engineering. Her current research interests include natural language processing and machine learning. She has published more than 10 papers retrieved by SCI or EI in the international journal or conferences as the first author. She is the principal investigator of two provincial-level projects.